Sketch of Talbot Family

" When William the Conqueror made his invasion of England in 1066 and fought the battle of Hastings he erected , on this battle field, a Monestary as a Memoril of his victory and as Chantry for his Companions, which was called " Battle Abbey" and in this Monestary was preserved for Centuries a Roll of several hundred names of his principle followers.

Le Sire Talebot is among the names inscribed on the Roll of " Battle Abbey" and so he is claimed to have been among the Norman Knights who accompanied William the Conqueror in his invasion of England.

Some writers trace the Talebot family back, to a Junior line of the Comtes D'Eu in Normandy, as the Coat of Arms of this illustrious house was similar to that borne originally by the Early Talebot's in England. The name Talebot is first found on record in connection with Eu and vicinity in Normandy.

In 1035, Hugh Talebot and Gilbert, Comte D'Eu appear on a Charter to Trinite Du Mont, Ruen Normandy; and a generation later William Talebot's name appears in the foundation Charter in 1057 by Robert Comte D'Eu , of the Abbey of Trefort near Eu Normandy. And it is possible that William Talebot is the " Le Sire Talebot" on the Roll of " Battle Abbey". Le Sire Talebot is claimed to have been the father of two sons. 1st Richard Talebot born in Normandy about 1050, he was Ancestor of the celebrated Historic Talbot family of England and America. The 2nd son was Goeffrey Talebot, who held under-tenant lands in County

Essex ( See Domesday survey 1085 )

In 1085 Richard Talebot , held a Manor in Battleaden, Bedfordshire as undertenant to Walter Gifford, Feudal Earl of Buckingham, this Estate comprised fifteen hundred acres ( See Domesday survey 1085 ) . In 1080 Richard Talebot married a daughter of Hugh de Gournay and Basilia his wife ( Basilia was a daughter of Gerard Flaitel ) . Richard Talebot's wife was a sister of Gerard de Gournay, Feudal Baron of Yarmouth. Richard Talebot, son of Le Sire Talebot, had by his De Gournay wife, two children 1st Geoffrey Talebot, born about 1080 , was Ancestor of the Talebot's of Bashall in Yorkshire. 2nd Hugh de Talebot, born about 1085: In 1118 he was in rebellion raised by his cousin Hugh de Gournay against King Henry I; He was ancestor of the Talbot's Earls of Shrewsbury. He was supposed to be a younger son of Le Sire Talebot who came into England from Normandy in 1066 with William the Conqueror, in 1118 he was commander of the Castle of Plessey , by his cousin Hugh de Gournay , who was in rebellion against King Henry I. Late in life, Hugh Talebot assumed the habit of a monk and retired into the Monestary of Beaubec in Normandy , remaining there until his death. Hugh Talebot married Beatrix, daughter of William De Mandeville and it is claimed he had three sons by this union. 1st Richard Talbot, born about 1120, is claimed to be the same Richard Talbot who about 1155 obtained from King Henry II , a Grant Capite of the Lordship of Eccleswall in Linton County Hereford, King Richard I, confirmed this grant in 1189

From this Richard Talbot, the descent of the Talbot family can be traced with certainty as the Estates in Linton formed the main seat of this illustrious family for generations.

Richard Talbot married a daughter of Stephen Bulmer of Apple-treewick Yorkshire, and was succeeded by his eldest son Gilbert Talbot, who was born about 1150 who was present at the Coronation of King Richard the 1st, in 1189 and by whom he was granted additional lands in Linton for military services as commander of Ludlow Castle. He was living in 1199-- and was succeeded by his son Richard Talbot, born about 1180- married Alivia ( Bassett) Montague, daughter of Allan Bassett, Baron of Wycombe, and a widow of Dreux de Montague, both were living in 1231. They had two sons, Richard Talbot who became Bishop of London in 1262, and an eldest son Gilbert Talbot, born about 1215, who succeeded to the family Estates and was later made Governor of the Castles of Grismond, Skinforth and Blanchminster by King Henry III. Gilbert Talbot married Gwendoline, daughter of Rhys ap Griffith, the King of South Wales, he thereupon gave up his Ancestral Arms and took for Armorial, ensigns of the Prince of South Wales. which his descendants have ever since borne. He died in 1274 and was succeeded by his son Richard Talbot, born about 1245, he was Sheriff of Gloucester and died in 1306, married Sarah de Beauchamp, daughter of William de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick. Their eldest son Sir Gilbert Talbot, Knt, first Baron Talbot, born about 1275, inherited family Estates, served in expedition to Scotland 1298, was appointed Governor of Gloucester Castle in 1323, summoned to Parliament as Baron 1331-1343. He died in 1346- married Ann Bolteler, daughter of William Bolteler of Wemme. He had a son and heir, Sir Richard Talbot, Knt, Second Baron, born 1302, was summoned to Parliament 1331-1335, claimed Certain Scottish Estates in right of his wife and following Edward Baliol invaded that Kingdom and defeated the Scots at Gleddesmore, He was made a prisoner two years later, and had ~~the~~ to pay 2000 marks for redemption, in 1336 he was made Govenore of Berwick Castle, in 1346 succeeded to fathers Estates, 1355 served in an expedition to France and died Oct 23rd 1356, married Elizabeth Comyn, daughter and co-heir of John Comyn, Lord of Goodrich Castle. Their eldest son and heir Gilbert Talbot, third Baron, born 1332, succeeded to family Estates 1356, was summoned to Parliament 1362-1386, served in Wars in France under Black Prince and died 24th April 1387, 1st wife Petronella Boliter, daughter of James Boliter Earl of Ormond, married 1st wife 1360. 2nd wife was Eleanor de Bohun, daughter of Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, and his wife Lady Elizabeth Plantagenet the daughter of King Edward 1st.

Sir Richard Talbot, son of Eleanor de Bohun, was born about 1361, was summoned to Parliament 1384-1393, inherited family Estates on death of father 1387, died Sept 7th 1396, married about 1382 Ankaret Le Strange, daughter of and heiress of John La Strange of Blackmere. They had five sons and four daughters of whom the eldest son Gilbert Talbot, born 1383, succeeded to the family Estates 1396, was summoned to Parliament as Fifth Baron 1404-1417, died 19th Oct 1419 leaving a sole child and heiress Ankaret Talbot who died 1421 at age of four years.

The second son Sir John Talbot K.G. First Earl of Shrewsbury, born 1390; married Maude eldest daughter and co-heir of Thomas Nevil, Lord Furnival, was summoned to Parliament in 1409, as Johannes Talbot de Furnival. He was appointed in 1412, Lord Justice of Ireland and in two years afterwards, Lord Lieutenant of the same Kingdom, He governed there for seven years. This Lord Talbot who Shakespeare terms " The Great Achilles of the field" was one of the most renowned Captains of the war-like age he lived in. His earliest feat of Arms was under Henry V, in France at the siege and capture of Meux. He was with the King when he died, in 1422, and he seems to have inherited the heroic spirit of his Royal Master. He gloriously sustained the cause of Henry VI throughout his French realm in battle after battle, until the very name of Talbot became a terror to Frenchmen. He was for a moment, checked in his career by the " Maid of Orleans" at Patay in 1429, when his Army being routed he was taken prisoner. He was exchanged for Ambrose De Lore, a celebrated French partisan, he was soon in activity again, the master mind and Master director of the fierce contest in France. In reward, he was created 20th of May 1442, Earl of Shrewsbury. He was subsequently re-constituted Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and elevated to the Peerage of that Kingdom, 12th July 1446, as Earl of Waterford, having been appointed at the same time Lord High Steward of Ireland. After this he went once more to fight in France. He commanded a fleet, landed and took Aquitania , then marched to the South and made Bordeaux surrender and the surrounding towns send in submission, he met the French Army which was commanded by , Dunois, Bastard of Orleans. In the battle which took place the 20th of July 1453, John Talbot in the sixty-third year of his age , received a wound which proved immediately mortal. His second wife was Margaret Beauchamp , eldest daughter and co-heir of Richard Earl of Warwick.

Sketch of John Talbot, 1st Earl of Shrewsbury.

John Talbot, 1st Earl of Shrewsbury , is buried in St Alkmunds Church, Whitchurch England. He and his son Lord Lisle were slain while charging the enemy near Castillon France 1453.

John Talbot was struck with a battle axe across the back of his head and fell while leading his men in battle. Before dying he begged his Comrades to, carry his body back to Whitchurch and bury it beneath the stone porch of St Alkmunds , so their descendants would walk over it as they were trampling over it then. His comrades who were men from Whitchurch , were unable to carry out his request then, did carry his heart back and buried it in a silver casket beneath the stone porch of the church. Years after this, his bones were recovered in Rome Italy, where they had been carried, and were brought back to England and rests in a stone Sarcophagus beneath a recumbent figure of the Earl in St Alkmunds Church, Whitchurch. His body was recognized by a deformed finger and when it reached England a picture was taken of the skeleton and is preserved in the vestry room of the ~~for~~ church.

The earliest trace of an ecclesiastical building here goes back to Norman times, this mediaval church contained ten graceful Lancet windows in addition to a fine East Window. These Chancel lights were filled with stained glass emblazoned with the Arms of Beauchamp-- Warren-- Surry-- Arundel and Talbot. In 1711 the whole church settled down, there was a Talbot Chap-elin this church , and many monuments of the family therein and in the Chancel, all of which perished, save an Alabaster effigy of Sir John, the founder of the Grammar school, and that of the " Great John Talbot" at the fall of the church.

Opposite the choir and near the altar is the stone Sarcophagus which contains the bones of John Talbot. Beneath a recumbent figure of the Earl, his hands folded across his breast and his body in repose. On his head is a hooded helmet , his sword hangs at his side in Scabbard and at each base of the Norman Arch over the tomb , there is a dog crouching at ease. The Talbot Crest bears a dog. The tablet beneath the tomb bears this inscription " This tomb was restored in the year of our Lord 1874 by Adelaide Countess of Brownlow , daughter of the Eighteenth Earl of Shrewsbury".

( Copied from Vestry book of St Alkmunde Church, Whitchurch England-- the inscription was copied from tomb , by Mrs Lucian Lamar Knight)

Sketch of Isham Talbot

Isham Talbot, son of Isham Talbot and Jane ( Clayton ) Talbot moved to Kentucky from Virginia in 1783 or 91.

Isham Talbot was born in the County of Bedford, and State of Virginia, in the year 1773. While quite a youth, his father emigrated with his family to Kentucky, and settled near Harrodsburg, in Mercer County. The means of acquiring an education , at that early date were necessarily limited, and each individual in the pursuit of knowledge, had to rely, in a great degree on the resources of his own intellect and will.

Young Talbot was sent to the best schools of Harrodsburg but he acquired , without the aid of teachers a respectable knowledge of Ancient and some of the Modern languages.

On arriving at manhood he studied law with Colonel George Nicholas, and commenced the practice of his profession in the town of Versailles, in Woodford County Ky. He soon after moved to Frankfort and entered the lists when Clay, Daviess, Bibb, Bledsoe and Rowan adorned the Bar, and public opinion of that day and this , has regarded Mr Talbot as one of the brightest in that galaxy of illustrious names.

In 1812, he was elected to the Senate of Kentucky from the County of Franklin, which office he continued to hold until his election in 1815 to the Senate of the United States, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Jesse Bledsoe. In 1820 he was re-elected to the Sanate and served in that body till 4th March 1825. Mr Talbot's career in the Senate is a part of the history of our common country, and the reports of the debates of that body bear ample proofs of his eloquence and patriotism.

He died at Melrose, his residence near Frankfort, on the 21st of September 1873.

Sketch of Matthew Talbot

( Govenor of Georgia- 1819-1819 )

Matthew Talbot, son of John and Phoebe ( Moseley ) Talbot, was born in Halifax County Virginia in 1767 and died in Wilkes County Georgia, Sept 17th 1827. He married Elizabeth Mounger of Greene County Georgia.

Matthew Talbot became a leading public man in early life. He was elected to the Senate of the State of Georgia 1799- 1801-- 1802-- 1803--22. Was President of that body from 1811 to 1822. He was exceedingly genial in his manner. A gentleman of the old school, and while a warm supporter of Gov Clark, was not obnoxious to the Crawford party, Mr Crawford and himself lived in the same county, both came from the same section of Virginia.

While Mr Talbot was President of the Senate, Govenor Rabun died and so he was for some months Govenor. He was the Clark candidate against Troup, and his friends confidently expected his election. It was before the Legislature and when the joint ballot was taken Troup had 85 votes and Talbot 81. Troup was elected by four votes. He died only a few years after this. Govenor Talbot was Govenor of the State in 1819-1819.

Govenor Talbot was a representative of that class of public men who gave great dignity to our early assemblies. They were partisans, but not politicians. They were Democrats in creed, but no aristocrat in English Parliament was ever more exacting in his demand for respect nor more careful to observe all ceremonies of the best type of English life.

Matthew Talbot was a member of the Constitutional Convention from Oglethorpe County 1795 and Member of the Constitutional Convention from Wilkes County Georgia in 1798.

( See Biographical Sketch in White's Historical Collection of Georgia )

Sketch of John Talbot-- Son of Matthew and Mary ( Williston) Talbot.

John Talbot, fourth son of Matthew and Mary ( Williston) Talbot was born in Amelia County Va in 1734. He lost his mother when he was a little over a year old, was reared by his father's second wife Jane ( Clayton) Talbot. When he was five years old, his father moved from Bedford County Va. His father died when he was twenty three years old, made him his executor. He served ~~from~~ for twenty-five years in the House of Burgesses in Va. He was a member of the famous house of 1774. He was one of the thirteen men who left Lord Dunmore's Council, went to the old " Raleigh Tavern" in Williamsburg, signed, on the 4th day of June 1774, the first Declaration of Independence. There is a monument erected to them in Williamsburg.

During the Revolution his name was associated with the famous Charles Lynch. He was Captain of the Militia, was High Sheriff, Executor of his fathers will, his brothers Charles and James, and agent of his brother Isham, was guardian of his nieces and nephews also.

In 1783 he moved with his family to Wilkes County Georgia. His first wife was Sarah Anthony, she lived but a short while leaving no children. In 1759 he married Phoebe Loseley, the daughter of Col William Moseley and his wife Phoebe ( Hancock) Moseley. By baptism he was an Episcopalian but as there was no church of this denomination in Wilkes, he affiliated with the Presbyterians and in 1788 gave the lot for Smyrna Church in that County. John Talbot was the first to be buried at Smyrna, August 15th 1794. The funeral sermon was preached by the Rev John Springer, the first Presbyterian Minister ever ordained in Georgia. On this occasion the weather was intensely hot being August; the occasion was one of great solemnity and importance. The good man no doubt measured the length of his sermon and the fervor of his remarks accordingly. At any rate he became prostrated from long continued speaking and was borne away in a fainting condition before the services were concluded, and died a few hours afterwards.

None but the Talbot family are buried within the rock wall inclosure. Within the inclosure lie the remains of Col David Creswell, a brave soldier under General Nathaniel Green, Col David Creswell married Phoebe Talbot, daughter of John Talbot. In the same inclosure lieth the remains of Major William Triplett, a brave soldier of the Revolution, he married Mary (Willie ton) Talbot, dau of John Talbot. Col William Jones of Hanover County Va, is buried in the inclosure also, he married Elizabeth Conway Talbot, dau of Thomas Arundel Talbot, and grand-daughter of John Talbot. She died in 1839, aged 30 years and left one daughter, Elizabeth Talbot Jones, who married Capt Carlton Belt of Bulloch County Ga.

Among John Talbot's descendants were Gen Wm H.T. Walker, who was killed at the battle of Atlanta, July 22nd 1864-- Col David Walker, who was killed at Thorough Gap Virginia. Col Matthew Henry Talbot, who was Colonel of "Talbot's Scouts" in War between the States. Madame Octavia Walton LeVert. Mrs Elizabeth Talbot Belt. Mrs Rebecca Latimer Felton, first woman United States Senator.

" General William Henry Talbot Walker was born in the city of Augusta Ga, on the 20th of November 1816 and was the son of Hon Freeman Walker and Mary ( Creswell ) Walker. Hon Freeman Walker was a Lawyer of eminence in this State while in practice, was elected to the General Assembly of Georgia, from Richmond County 1804--- 1805-06 Extra Session. Elected to United States Senate from Georgia , to succeed John Forsyth, resigned in Dec 12th 1819--- Freeman Walker resigned his seat in U.S. Senate in Aug 8th 1821.

Mrs H.T. Walker was educated in his native city, and his preparation for a higher Collegiate course was given him at what is known , as the Richmond Academy.

At the age of Sixteen young Walker was appointed a Cadet at the West Point Military Academy, and entered that Institution July 1st 1832. Cadet Walker graduated July 1st 1837, and was appointed Brevet Second Lieutenant , Sixth U.S. Infantry. The Government being at that time engaged in hostilities with the Seminole Indians in Florida. Lieu' Walker was assigned to immediate service with his Regiment in that State, and on the 31st of July, was promoted to a full Second Lieutenantcy. The Regiment was then in command of Brevet Brigadier General Zachary Taylor ( Subsequently President of the United States )

Lieutenant Walker spent his first Christmas in the Army ( Jan 25th 1837 ) in deadly conflict with the Seminole Indians at the " Battle of Okechobee".

Young Walker was five times wounded before he was taken from the bloody field, so forgetful of was he of self, and so intent upon doing his whole duty, and encouraging, by his own conduct and words, the same fidelity on the part of his comrades. An Officer thus describes his wounds: " Lieutenant Walker was shot through the neck, and in the shoulder: one of his arms was broken, and he was wounded in one of his legs, yet he continued to lead his men onward, and to cheer them in the fight. As he advanced he found himself near Lieut Col Thompson of the Sixth Infantry ( then in the immediate command of the Regiment) and saw that gallant Officer fall by the shot that terminated his life. Turning to his beloved Commander and friend, with a word of sympathy, Lieut Walker received his fifth wound, ( over the region of the heart) and fell to the ground. The battle soon after turned its course in another direction, and some of the savages came out of the swampy and thickly wooded field, and scalped several of the Federal soldiers, Although they took from his body such valuables as were upon it, for some reason his scalp was not included in their trophies. It is supposed that they were frightened away by some returning soldiers before they had time to scalp their supposed dead victim. Several months after, Lieutenant Walker's pocket book and a portion of its contents were recovered from a captured Indian.

In speaking of the battle of Okechobee, the Army and Navy Chronicle" of Feb 1st 1838, after giving a list of the participants, adds; " All these Officers showed the greatest gallantry in the fight. Andrews was severely wounded, and Walker of the 11th was literally shot to pieces, four balls having passed through him and several grazed him. He is fast recovering, however, and is as manly under his severe wounds as he was brave in receiving them. He is a promising Officer.

Of course a long " sick leave of absence followed his severe wounds and his recovery was painfully slow; in fact, he never wholly recovered from the effects of this severe shock upon his system. During his leave of absence and while he was still losing portions of bone from his wounds, he was ordered to join his company. Feeling that this order was unjust to him, he resigned his commission October 31st, 1838, and commenced the study of Law. But he was not long to remain out of the service. His brother Officers solicited him to seek restoration to his former position, and all the Officers offered to Waive their rank who had been promoted by his resignation, if he would return. Unable to resist such flattering overtures on the part of his comrades, he applied to the President to be restored, and on the 18th of Nov 1840, he was re-appointed First Lieutenant Sixth Infantry ( His former rank) to date from Feb 1st 1828, at which time he had resigned. During the years 1840-41-42, Lieut Walker served in the Florida War, then on frontier duty at Fort Towson and Fort Gibson, Indian Territory, after which ( 1844) he was assigned to recruiting service for nearly two years, owing to the enfeeblement of his health by exposure of frontier service.

While on duty as a recruiting Officer Nov 7th 1845, Lieut Walker was promoted to a Captaincy in his Regiment, He applied to the Government for an immediate transfer to active service in Mexico, he was allowed to take two hundred men to the seat of war, and he left with them in Nov 1846 although his own Regiment was still on duty at the West.

Captain Walker was present at the battles of Cerro Gordo, Contreras, Churubusco and Molino del Rey, the siege of Vera Cruz, the skirmish of Amazoque and the capture of San Antonio. In the battle of Molina de Rey, Sept 8th 1847, Capt Walker was shot through the body by a large escabelle ball, he fell near the walls of the Fortress, where he could be seen from the roofs of the buildings, on which many of the enemy were stationed, At every movement of his suffering body these Mexicans would fire upon him. On being removed from the field, at the close of the conflict, It was found that he was terribly wounded and no hope was entertained for his recovery. For months he lay in Mexico. the victim of the most severe suffering from his wounds.

He was made Brevet Major, Aug 20th 1847 for gallantry and meritorious conduct in battles of Contreras and Churubusco and Brevet Lieut-Colonel Sept 8th 1847 for gallant and meritorious conduct in battle Molino del Rey, in which battle he was severely wounded. On account of wounds he was only able to perform recruiting service in 1849-50-51-52. Dec 2nd 1852 was appointed Deputy Govenor of East Pascagoula Branch Military Asylum in Miss, where he remained until June 24th 1854. From 1854 to 1856 he was commandant of Cadets and "Instructor of Military Tactics" at the West Point Military Academy.

In 1860 Major Walker resigned his commission and when Georgia seceded from the Union, Gen Walker promptly offered his services to the Govenor and was appointed Commander of the first two Regiments, organized for State service. When the Confederate government had been duly established at Montgomery Alabama a commission of Colonel was offered him but he declined and accepted the position of Major General of Militia of Ga tendered him by Governor Brown. A Commission of Brigadier General in Confederate Army was tendered him and he was assigned to duty at Pensacola Florida, was later transferred to Va and in 1863 he was assigned to duty with Gen Joseph E. Johnston in North Miss , and for gallantry, was promoted to rank of Major General , and after the fall of Vicksburg he joined General Bragg and the Army of Tenn and fought with that command until he was killed at the battle of Atlanta, July 22nd 1864.

His body was taken in charge by Lieut-Colonel Matthew Henry Talbot , Aide de Camp to Gen Walker, and old George Talbot the faithful black body-guard, and carried to the " Trout House" and prepared for burial, later Col Talbot accompanied the remains to Augusta and had this gallant General interred at the old Arsenal.

In 1849 the State of Ga through her General Assembly , presented Brevet Lieut Col Wm. H.T. Walker, U.S.A. a sword of honor as a tribute to , his gallantry in Florida and Mexico and on this sword was inscribed the names of the battlefields upon which he had distinguished himself " Okechobee, Vera Cruz, Churubusco and Molina del Rey.

General Walker was survived by four children, Wm H.T. Walker-- Freeman W. Walker-- Hannah Townsend Walker( Mrs Clifford W Anderson) and Mary Walker ( Mrs C.C. Schley) .

Gen Wm H.T. Walker married Miss Mary Townsend of Albany New York in 1846, who devoted her life to him and died just a few years later Dec 27th 1868 in Albany New York.

But in the old Walker family burial ground, on the Sand Hills near Augusta Ga, side by side their bodies rest"

Sketch of Matthew Henry Talbot

Matthew Henry Talbot, son of James Creswell Talbot and Sarah Ann ( Phillips) Talbot, was born at the old Talbot homestead in Wilkes County Georgia April 3rd 1836, married in Eatonton Ga Feb 4th 1864, the brilliant Mary Elizabeth Reid, daughter of Col Alexander Sidney Reid and Maria Louisa ( Jordan) Reid . Matthew Henry Talbot died in Wilkes County Georgia Sept 27th 1876, and was buried in the family inclosure at old Smyrna Church in Wilkes County where all the Talbot family have been interred for over a hundred years. This old church was built by John Talbot soon after the Revolutionary War. Matthew Henry Talbot graduated at Emory University with the degree of A.B. Oxford Georgia 1856. He studied law in the office of Judge Francis Cone of Greensborough Ga, and was admitted to the bar , and opened a law office in Augusta Ga just before the War. At the outbreak of hostilities he enlisted in the " Toombs Guards" a company organized and equipped by Captain Carlton Belt of Millen Ga. Matthew Henry Talbot was made 1st Lieutenant of this company and after the death of Capt Belt, Lieutenant Talbot was made Captain in 1862. He was transferred to the Staff of General Wm H.T. Walker in 1863 , and after the death of Gen Walker at the battle of Atlanta , Captain Talbot was ordered by Govenor Brown, to organize a Regiment which was known as " Talbot's Scouts" 1864. Captain Talbot was made Lieut-Colonel of this Regiment and served with this command until the surrender.

The " Toombs Guards" a company in 9th Ga Regiment was one of the original Regiment organizations, this Regiment was immediately ordered to Va and was made a part of the command of General Joseph Johnston , then at Harpers Ferry and afterwards at Winchester from which place the entire command was ordered to re-inforce Gen Beauregard at Manassas, after a tiring and exhausting march , re-crossing the Blue Ridge they reached Manassas and actively engaged in the first most memorable battle of the war. After this the 9th Regiment with the rest of the Army of Gen Beauregard which was then under command of Gen Joseph Johnston was ordered to Richmond to meet the advance of Gen McClelland by the Peninsular , on Richmond. Capt Belt died early in the War Col Talbot was at that time in command of his company and was engaged in all the bloody battles succeeding that campaign and escaped with a very slight wound, his company was in the battle of Gettysburg ( considered the greatest of the War) and suffered so terribly in the battle, the few who were left were merged into other companies of the Regiment. Col Talbot was Aide de Camp to Gen Wm H.T. Walker and he remained with the Army of Tenn during the entire campaign, from Dalton to Atlanta at which place Gen Walker was killed , July 22nd 1864. Col Talbot, with the aid of Mr Collier and old George his colored body gaurd, carried Gen Walker's remains to the " Trout House" and prepared it for burial and from there Col Talbot accompanied the remains to Augusta Ga where the General was buried. Col Talbot with his new Regiment " Talbot's Scouts" was in front of Sherman in his march through Georgia, frequently engaging his forces until the evacuation of Savannah, after which time they resumed their positions in front of the enemy and oppsed his march through South Carolina. In the spring of 1865 Col Talbot with his command were ordered to famous raid through Georgia, Col Talbot was ordered to Macon to join forces of General Howell Cobb who was in command there when the city surrendered to General Wilson. Col Talbot not willing to surrender made his escape with his command and by a circuitous route made his way back to Milledgeville and reported to Governor Brown, the War closing after, Col Talbot with his command were disbanded from that place.

Milledgeville and remained there until Gen Wilson started on his

( This record was taken from Col Talbot's diary which he kept during the War- His commissions etc were destroyed by General Shermans Army when they captured Milledgeville, the Capital )

Sketch of Octavia Walton LeVert

Octavia Walton LeVert, " The Magnolia of the South", born in 1810 at " Bellevue", near Augusta, was the daughter of George Walton and Sarah ( Minge Walker ) Walton, and the grand-daughter of George Walton who was a " Signer of the Declaration of Independence" from Georgia. A Colonel in the Revolutionary War , a Trustee of the University of Georgia, at the time of his death which took place at his Country Seat " Meadow Garden" near Augusta Ga in 1804. He was wounded and taken prisoner during the Revolutionary War-- Was a Chief Justice of the State-- Married Dorothy Camber, daughter of an English Nobleman, she died at Pensacola Fla, Sept 1832 at the home of her son George Walton, who held the office of Secretary of State under General Jackson, when the latter was Govenor of the Territory of West Florida. She was buried in St Michaels Churchyard, her tomb bearing the following inscription " Died in Pensacola, Sept 12th 1832 Mrs Dorothy Walton, a native of the State of Ga., A Matron of the Rev, consort and Relict of George Walton, A Signer of the Declaration of American Independence".

Octavia Walton LeVert, was one of the most remarkable women Georgia ever produced, though hers was rather the triumph of Culture than deeds done. Despite the fact that her education was chiefly through her mother and grand-mother's instruction she spoke most of the languages of Modern Europe; and in her travels abroad, came to know many distinguished Europeans, of whom were the Browning's, Napoleon III, and the Empress Eugenie, the Countess de Montijo, the Count and Countess of Alba, Pope Pius IX with whom Madame LeVert and her party had private audience, besides Powers, Buchanan, Read, Crawford, Ives, Gibson and many

The Queen sent to Madame LeVert by Royal Messenger a card to a State Ball without the formality of a previous presentation. And on a visit to Lamartine, he said to her; " You have it in your power to fill with pleasure the hearts of your nation. Promise me to write a few Souvenirs of European Travel". Such was the inspiration which prompted Madame LeVert to write her " Souvenirs of Travel". which is made up entirely of the letters of her two journeys to Europe.

While Colonel George Walton, the father of Octavia, was resident in Pensacola where he was Territorial Secretary and acting Governor under General Jackson, Octavia gained the friendship of the old Seminole Chief who called her the " White Dove of Peace" and who was delighted when she named the new Capital " Tallahassee" which means in Seminole " Beautiful Land".

In 1833, at the age of twenty-three, Octavia Walton made a tour of the United States, where in City and Watering-place she well earned the title everywhere accorded her of " Belle of the Union". In 1835 Col George Walton moved to Mobile Alabama, and Octavia, while nursing the sick in the poor quarter of the city met Dr Henry S. LeVert, a handsome young Surgeon of distinguished birth, to whom she married in 1836, and from this union there were four children, two infants died, Octavia the eldest daughter grew to young ladyhood and died. Annette the " Cara Netta" of the Souvenirs", married Regyl Reab, of Augusta Ga and had one son Regyl Reab who now resides in Augusta Ga.

One of the Originators of the plan of the American Women to preserve Mount Vernon to the Nation, Madame LeVert was for years Vice-Regent for Alabama of the Mount Vernon Association .

Madame LeVert possessed the capacity of attaching to her many warm personal friends and besides many lesser lights the most distinguished of these friends were Washington Irving, Millard Fillmore, Edwin Booth, Henry W. Longfellow, Henry Clay, N.P. Willis, Jefferson Davis, General Beauregard, Robert Toombs, Alexander Stephens, Edward Everett, John C. Calhoun, and Daniel Webster.

" Adam Badeau said of her " In conversation she never flags nor ever utters a commonplace"

" No human being has ever been pained by an unkind word or an ungenerous act of hers".

Henry Clay, who loved her dearly, said " She has a tongue that never spoke an evil word of any one".

In 1874 Madame LeVert appeared for a time as a public reader, but her life was drawing to its close, and the spirit of this remarkable woman winged its flight in 1877 at beautiful " Bellevue" where it had begun. She was then sixty-seven years old. Dr LeVert died in 1864.

" An Interesting Sketch of Mrs Elizabeth Talbot Belt

A Real Daughter of 1812 "

One of the most unike and interesting persons in Atlanta today is Mrs Elizabeth Talbot Belt , of Millen Ga., the guest of Mr and Mrs U.O. Robertson, of 172 Capitol Avenue.

Mrs Belt comes of distinguished ancestry/ She is a real daughter of 1812, her father, Col William Jones, having served with distinction in the War of 1812. His great- grand-father was the successor of Patrick Henry as Colonel of the Hanover Militia, the first Regiment mustered into service in Hanover County Va in the Revolutionary War with England.

Mrs Belt's mother was related with the Ball's and Conway's who gave two Presidents to the United States, also to the Garlington's and Creswell's. Her mother's father was Col Talbot who could trace his lineage in an unbroken line twelve hundred years. His father John Talbot, was one of the thirteen men who signed the first Declaration of Independence at Williamsburg Va. where a shaft has been erected to their memory.

Having a large Grant of land in Wilkes County Georgia, after the War was over he moved to Wilkes County, where he lived a wealthy and influential citizen. Mrs Belt's husband, Dr Carlton Belt, organized the Color company of the 9th Ga Regiment C.S.A. He and his wife true to their Patriotic traditions spent $ 3.000 in fitting this company with everything for active service except guns. He went to the field with them as their Captain May 21st 1861. He was wounded at Dam No 1, Yorktown April 25th 1862, and died of his wounds at Richmond Va, May 14th 1862. During the War Mrs Belt was active in enlisting men and with helping with time and money the cause for which her husband had given his life. From cotton grown and spun at home, she knitted with her own hands ninety pairs of socks for the boys in gray.

After the war Mrs Belt went to Washington D.C. to educate her children. She was well known as the Georgia woman correspondent of the Savannah Republican when Sneed was its Editor. She wrote the "Womans appeal for Reconstruction" to John A. Bingham, Senator from Ohio, and Chariman of the Reconstruction Committee. He refused to pay any attention to the letter at that time but after it was brought to President Grant's attention and filed with the report from Georgia. He, later on wrote the following letter.

Washington April 20th 1871

" Dear Madam;

It gives me pleasure to recall your earnest and continued efforts to restore your native State of Georgia " The Empire State of the South" to her equal place in the Union of States and the Empire of the people.

Whoever writes the history of that struggle and writes it truthfully , must assign you a place with the friends of restoration second to that of no other person who appeared for Georgia. Such fidelity and devotion to the interest of a great people should neither be forgotten nor refused that tribute of that peoples gratitude. You surely will not be denied this either by the people of Georgia or by any true American at home or abroad.

With the highest regards for you and with sincere wishes for the health of yourself and family, I have the honor to be " Very truly your friend and obedient servant,

John A. Bingham".

Mrs Belt is an honorary member of the Southern Historical Society at Washington, the American Historical Society, at Baltimore, the Virginia Historical Society, at Richmond, the D.A.R. of Wilkes County Georgia, the Daughters of 1812, Atlanta, Ga, and Historian of the U.D.C. Millen Ga.

Mrs Belt has reached an honored old age, being 79 years old. Her mind is as alert as in youth. Her memory is a wonderful store house of things both old and new. for she keeps abreast of the times being a great reader and thinker. Her eyes are undimmed, as bright and blue as a child's. She loves dainty lingerie gowns, and she looks like a fine rare Cameo.

( Written by Mrs Joseph Kingsberry several years before the death of Mrs Belt, and appeared in a local paper)

Something about the Whitney Invention -

How the Inventor was Defrauded of his Rights.

" The late Judge Garnett Andrews of Washington Wilkes County Ga, in a letter written to the Cultivator in 1852 says;

" I rode a few days since, six miles below this place, to see my old friend, Mr Talbot and his kitchen and barn, both historical reminiscences of Whitney's great invention, the cotton gin. Mr Talbot is 85 years old and in full possession of all of his faculties, and is living where he settled in 1790, ( Sixty two years ago). Whitney the inventor of the cotton gin, lived on a small farm of eighty acres adjoining Mr Talbot's plantation on which he placed one of his gins, the first that was used in the State. Whitney and his partner Durkee erected a gin house and a large cotton house, the latter to hold the cotton they expected to receive from customers to gin. The gin house was grated with iron bars so that visitors might look through and see the cotton flying from the gin without seeing the gin. He suffered women to go into the gin house and see the machinery, not apprehending that they could betray his secret to builders. A man by the name of Lyon who lived some eight or ten miles above this place by dressing himself in womans clothes procured admittance and came out and made his improvement the Saw gin.

Mr Talbot says that Billy M. Farren, his blacksmith made the saws, the first that were ever made.

Durkee, Whitney's partner, being dissipated and inattentive to business, Whitney sold out his farm to Mr Talbot,. The gin and cotton house, Mr Talbot had moved to his place , the former is now his kitchen and still has the long grated windows as in the time of Whitney. The cotton house makes a large commodious barn. Mr Talbot says that Allison or Ellison, a man connected in business with Whitney, told him that Whitney got his first idea of the invention from a machine used to prepare rags for making paper and which he saw on a wrecked vessel. It may be interesting to say that during the War of 1812 cotton was hauled from this County ( Wilkes) to Baltimore and Philadelphia and wagons loaded back with goods.

I cannot close this communication says Judge Andrews without a word about my aged and highly respected friend in his character of planting. Some of the land now in cultivation by Mr Talbot was old when three fourths of the State of Georgia was in the hands of the Indians. Mr Talbot, by paying attention to improvement has not only preserved , but has improved some of his old lands. Before the days of cotton, tobacco and rice were planted on this land by Mr Talbot. The Walnut and other shade trees , planted by his own hands, have the appearance of aged trees. His slaves ( all inherited) some as old, if not older then himself, with three generations of children and gaand-children, and i dont know how far into the great grand-children, gave to the white haired citizen the appearance of a Patriarch at the head of his tribe.

The old Mansion house is now still and gloomy, for Mr Talbot has outlived nearly all of his family. From the front+ portico you can see old Smyrna Church and the graveyard where so many of the race lie buried. The land owned by Mr Talbot was granted in 1732 by King George the Third to Mr Talbot's father John Talbot, of Virginia, who was for many Sessions a member of the House of Burgess. Soon after receiving this grant of land he sent from his plantations in Virginia a number of slaves to settle on this land. The family moved to Georgia from Virginia in 1783. John Talbot on his arrival was sent to represent Wilkes County at Savannah which was then the Capital of Georgia. He died in the month of August 1795 at an advanced age. In Homes History of the Presbyterian Church he tells of the funeral of John Talbor, Esq.

He left two sons, Thomas ( the subject of this sketch) and Matthew. The records of Wilkes County and the State of Georgia tell how well and faithfully they served the State of Georgia. Among his great grand-children were the late Gen Wm H.T. Walker, who was killed at the battle of Atlanta, Col Albert R. Lamar of Lacon, Mrs Elizabeth Talbot Belt , widow of the late Captain Carlton Belt of Bulloch County.

Captain Samuel Reid

By

William Dennis Reid

" Captain Samuel Reid, a Patriot and soldier of the American Revolution, of whom, it is estimated, more than a thousand descendants are now living in the different States, was born in Ireland, in 1728, of Scotch-Irish parents, his father being Alexander and his mother Margaret ( nee McCay ) Reid.

The Reid's were among that Clan of original Scotch Presbyterians whom James I, induced to migrate from their native hills about the year 1611, and occupy the vast domains in northern Ireland that had escheated to the Crown after the suppression of the Irish rebellion the latter part of the Sixteenth century.

This rebellion had been instigated by Phillip II, of Spain, who foresaw in the Catholics of Ireland, allies by whose aid he could redeem the defeat of the Armada, and by strategy regain the English throne for Catholicism. The rebels being finally subdued, many of their leaders were executed, while hundreds of them were driven from their homes. More than five hundred thousand acres of land in Ulster thus reverted to the Crown of England. It was these fertile lands that James I, invited the Scotch to go over and occupy. The Scotch had rendered valuable assistance to the English in driving back the Spaniards from their coast and the coast of Ireland during the attempted invasion by the Armada; granting to some of them titles to these vacant Irish lands would, in a measure , reward the Scotch for their timely co-operation against the Spaniards. It was from these liberty-loving Scotch farmers that the Scotch-Irish emigrants to America descended.

It is interesting to note , in this connection, that this dissemination of Scotch Presbyterians among the Irish Catholics by James, though ostensibly a political movement that would tend to overcome or lessen the Catholic influence of the natives, was in effect a movement that also tended to divide the political strength of the Covenanters in Scotland. James had inherited the English Crown as a Scotch Protestant; but as King of Scotland he had viewed with suspicion the growth of the doctrine of Calvin as expounded by Knox and Melville. " Theologically", says Green, in his History of the English People", his ( James' ) opinions were as Calvinistic as those of Melville himself; but in the ecclesiastical fabric of Calvinism, in its organization of the Church, in its annual assemblies, in its public discussion and criticism of acts of government through the pulpit, he saw an organized democracy which threatened his Crown. And at this he struck as boldly as his forefathers had struck at the power of feudalism". Hence he exclaimed " A Scotch Presbytery as well fit-teth with monarchy as God and the Devil". The notion of the " Divine rights of Kings", he and his successors persisted in holding and although given a death blow for a time by Cromwell, nevertheless, the struggle between Protestantism and the Papacy continued until the American Colonies finally revolted. First the adherents of one religious sect and then another were persecuted and it was the persecution of the Presbyterians that caused the great migration of the Scotch-Irish to the American Colonies, which began in 1681, when William Penn founded the colony of Pennsylvania, and continued until the colonies declared their independence, when there were about two hundred thousand Scotch-Irish on this Continent.

It was in the large Scotch-Irish clan of colonists that landed in Philadelphia about 1745 that Alexander Reid, and several brothers came together with their families. With Alexander came his son Samuel, a lad in his teens, early imbued with the Scottish spirit of adventure, and entering the New World while the French and Indian War was still waging. Alexander Reid first settled in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania where he lived a few years. But hearing of the fertile lands of the border district of North Carolina, whither other Scotch-Irish immigrants had gone, he moved southward about 1750, following the foot of the Blue Ridge mountains until he reached the Yadkin river. Near that river he bought a plantation upon which he and his family lived for several years before the Revolution. He died in 1775, survived by his wife, Margaret, his sons Alexander Jr, Samuel, Andrew, John, and George, and his daughters Frances ( Mrs Hull ) and Hannah ( Mrs Knox ).

It is the Samuel of this family that is the subject of our sketch. Early Colonial records show that he bought lands in North Carolina in 1753, in what afterwards became Rowan County. In 1755, he was married to Agnes Kay, a native Irish lassie, who was a worthy woman of robust health and of exalted Christian character, who proved herself a real helpmeet and devoted companion to him as long as she survived. He provided a block-house home for his bride on his frontier plantation in North Carolina, situated on Dubleman's Creek which is a tributary of the Yadkin River, where, in spite of frequent Indian depredations, he accumulated considerable property without becoming wealthy, and reared a large Family. He had received a good classical education in Ireland, and his Scottish traits of energy, courage, economy and honesty well fitted him to perform successfully the part of a pioneer. He was honored by the Colonial Governor with the office of Captain of the Militia of his district, which position made him ex-officio tax-collector and also a member of the Colonial Council. Living in a frontier county, the militia was almost continually called upon to repel Indian invaders. As a man, he was sober, industrious, honorable and upright, and merited the confidence and esteem of both the Royal Governor and his fellow-subjects. But being a Presbyterian, he saw that certain policies of King George meant continued oppression; for among other things, Parliament had refused to consider the petition signed and submitted by the North Carolina colonists demanding that the marriage ceremony be valid when performed by clergymen who were not of the Church of England. The levying of unjust taxes by the King might be tolerated if it only meant an industrial handicap. But there were matters which concerned the consciences of men which the Scotchman had long looked upon as matters the King of England should cease to control. In the verbal controversies that followed at that time, Captain Reid does not appear to have taken a conspicuous part; but when the call for soldiers to defend the rights of the colonists came he was among the first to raise a company in behalf of Liberty, the American cause. Two military orders, still in possession of one of his descendents, are here copied, showing that he was commander of a company in North Carolina before Independence was formally declared.

Rowan, May 22, 1776

To Captain Reid;

Agreeable to order of Congress, you are to call your company together as soon as may be, and divide them into five divisions which are to be in the following order, viz: the fifth and last to consist of the aged and infirm, the other four to be nos, 1, ~~2~~ 2, 3, and 4 Divisions, which are to draw lots which are to go out in service when called upon. Which order you are strictly to observe and have your men in readiness to move at the shortest notice.

( Signed ) Francis Lock Col.

Another order issued a few months later reads as follows;
To Captain Samuel Reid.

Sir:

In pursuence of orders from Brigadier General Rutherford, you are directed to appear on the 21st of this instant with the one-half of your company in order to march against the Indians, as it is certain they have committed several murders within our bounds.

( Signed ) Francis Lock, Col.

Captain Reid's company was engaged during the first years of the war in defending North Carolina against the Indians and Tories that were so numerous and troublesome in that Colony. He himself had been appointed a member of the Committee of Safety, a council composed of intelligent, conservative and patriotic men whose duty it was to perform the executive functions of the colony after the removal of the Royal Governor. The responsible and delicate duty of detecting and apprehending spies and Tories also devolved upon this Committee. It was in 1780 that the British began active campaign to subdue the Southern Colonies, succeeding for a time, as these colonies were poorly fortified for lack of funds and military supplies.

Captain Reid's command participated under General Greene in several engagements with the British regulars when they invaded his colony.

He remained in North Carolina after the Revolution until 1788, when he decided to sell his interest in that State and remove to Georgia. That was the year Georgia ratified the Federal Constitution, the first of the Southern States to take that action. This political fact had much influence in causing Captain Reid's migration, as, it will be recalled, North Carolina did not formally ratify the Constitution and become one of the States of the Union until the following year, several months after Washington had been inaugurated President. Captain Reid had unsheathed his sword for the American cause, which had triumphed not by individual but by resistance of all the colonies. He therefore wished to be an original American citizen, ready to co-operate in the formation of a Union of the States under a government that would secure the citizen in his individual rights as well as protect his country against the encroachments of a foreign foe. His migration to Georgia soon after this State had ratified the Constitution is evidence sufficient that he was at heart a democrat, with confidence in all who had assisted in the struggle against political and religious oppression, and willing to cast his lot with those who believed in the wisdom of the "Majority Rule". In the year above mentioned, 1788, he purchased from Steven and William Bishop, seven hundred acres of land on Shoulder Bone Creek in what was then Green, and is now Hancock County, Georgia. To this plantation he removed his family. All of his children except his son James and his daughter Mrs Mary Hall came with him. His family then consisted of his wife, five sons, namely, James, Samuel Jr, Alexander, John and Andrew, and four daughters, Mary ( Mrs Hall) Margaret ( Mrs Bailey) Sarah ( , Agnes, and Nancy. Most of his children were married then and owned their homes.

Captain Reid's brothers also moved to Georgia with him, where they died; Andrew dying in 1791 in Green County Georgia, George, in 1799 in Green County; John, in 1806 in Hancock County; and Alexander in 1814 in Green County. His wife died about 1794.

Soon after the death of his wife, he sold his plantation to his two sons Alexander and Samuel Jr, with whom he made his home that latter years of his life. These two sons had inherited a predilection for frontier life. And so, in 1802, after the State had acquired titles to the territory between the Oconee and Ocmulgee rivers by treaty with the Indians, they both moved their families across the Oconee. Captain Samuel Reid was then living with his son Alexander, who had secured titles to a large tract of this unoccupied land. This plantation was lying in the northern portion of what was organized that year as Baldwin County . It became a part of Putnam County in 1807, when this county was created out of the northern half of Baldwin. To this productive pioneer farm he had come with his thrifty son to spend his waning winters. He had led an active, honorable and useful life; had enjoyed the affection of a large family, and the confidence and esteem of all with whom he had had either military or civil relations. He lived to see Eatonton laid out as the county seat of Putnam County, but died in 1810 at his son Alexander's home in the eighty-second year of his age. About four and a half miles northwest of Eatonton, on this original Reid plantation in a sequestered spot shaded by a cluster of oaks and pines, on the brow of a hillock about whose foot the waters of the old creek in which he often angled still ripple, the ashes of this patriot, this soldier still repose.
